

Production Manager

Part of the multinational Johnson Matthey group, with several Queens Awards and voted one of Britain's Most Admired Companies in 2008 and 2009, Emission Control Technologies is a world leading chemical manufacturing organisation. Involved in the development and manufacture of catalyst technology for the automotive industry, we operate to the industry quality standard TS16949, and ISO14001 associated with environmental best practice.

Our Hertfordshire based manufacturing facility uses bespoke automated systems for high volume catalyst production. Due to continued growth in our manufacturing activities, we have a vacancy for a Production Manager who will have functional responsibility for the manufacturing of automotive catalysts in accordance with world class manufacturing best practice.

This role offers you the opportunity to draw upon your process industry manufacturing experience to develop and implement process improvement projects aimed at increasing plant attainment and process efficiencies, improving product quality and minimising plant downtime. Your proven track record in production management, as well as your leadership skills will be required for developing a culture of autonomous maintenance and focussed improvement by effectively engaging staff on plant and production issues.

The successful applicant will be in possession of a relevant tertiary qualification, will have managerial experience relevant to this role, be knowledgeable with regards to process industry business critical requirements and have the ability to thrive in a high-pressure production environment.

In return, this is an opportunity to make a genuine and highly visible difference in a successful organisation. Candidates with the right attitude and determination will be given the appropriate development opportunities.

If you would like to apply, please submit your CV along with a short covering letter to:
